1916

A Thomas McDonald, late servant to Mess. McIntosh, and Company, tanners in Inverness, and John McLeod, apprentice, were accused of stealing a great number of hides from the tan-work of the Company; and Donald McLeod, a hider in Inverness, was accused of receiving and disposing of the hides, knowing them to be stolen.—Thomas McDonald and John McLeod confessed their crime; but Donald McLeod, though he acknowledged his having received about twenty hides from John McLeod, denied his knowledge of their being stolen.—Thomas McDonald and John McLeod were thereupon found guilty, but the libel was found not proved as to Donald McLeod, who was therefore dismissed, and the other two were sentenced to be whipped, and banished forth of Scotland for life.

John Gray tenant in Evasky, in the parish of Dornoch and county of Sutherland, was accused of stealing a sheep from John Ross, alias Sidders, in Dalvechbeg, in the parish of Rogart, and he having also confessed, was found guilty, and sentenced to one month's imprisonment.

There was no other business to come before the Court which rose yesterday; and this ends the northern Circuit.

Extract of a letter from Glasgow, May 10.

On Thursday last the following singular circumstance happened in this city:—A woman, after a short illness, occasioned by drinking an excessive quantity of aquavite, died in presence of several of her neighbours. The usual ceremonies of straightening, dressing, &c. were accordingly performed upon her. And after having been laid out upon the couch, for more than four hours, she, to the exceeding amazement and terror of her friends and acquaintances (who had just collected themselves enough to be able to recount the virtues of the deceased) sprang up from the couch, and called for a glass of whisky. After recovering from the confusion which was occasioned by so sudden a resurrection, they assisted in undressing the poor woman, and putting on her wearing apparel: but while they still persisted in refusing her command, she sprang from among them, and reeling to a shop hard by, she renewed her request. It happened that the good woman of this grocery had assisted in the pious offices of straightening, &c. as aforesaid, and was so much confounded at the sight of her late customer that she is not yet recovered from the panic.

Same day, a recruit, who had at different times enlisted with different parties for the sake of the bounty, and as often deserted, meeting accidentally with a sergeant of one of the parties upon the brink of the river, to prevent being apprehended, threw himself into the water, and notwithstanding every effort to prevent it, was drowned.

On Saturday last, the celebrated female Proteus, known by the name of Miss Watson, alias Buchanan, made her appearance again in this city. She was dressed in man's habit—blue coloured coat and vest, and flouched hat. She was first discovered by some hackney coach-drivers, to whom she had some few months ago given the slip in Ayrshire. She was soon after recognized by several, to whom she was obliged to confess herself; but as she declared she had nothing in the world to compensate for her basking, she suffered her to depart.

Saturday night, a soldier appearing drunk at the Cross, collected a mob about him, and by their tossing and otherwise sporting with him, he became so enraged, that he drew a knife out of his pocket, and thrust it into the belly of a boy, which would have been attended with instantaneous death, had not the knife very providentially declined downwards.—The soldier was immediately taken, and lodged in the tolbooth.

Extract of a letter from Aberdeen, May 10.

Upon Thursday last week, in the forenoon, there appeared at Ellon, something very uncommon, at least in this country. About 11 o'clock, there was observed, to the eastward, something like the smoke that arises from a whin-bush or wet straw when set on fire, and seemed to issue from a black thick cloud; one side of which, a column of seeming smoke, appeared as if it ascended, and the other side of it, as if it descended, and sometimes the whole column seemed to move round. Soon after, there was seen, a little below the town of Ellon, upon the river and some of the grounds adjacent, a greyish-coloured vapour, which moved up the river, the water of which, at the surface, was whirled about, and is said to have been raised sometimes to a considerable height; at which time there was heard an uncommon noise, which, at first, was thought to be thunder, but it seems plain it was not; for the sound was quite different from the sound of thunder; and it did not intermit, but continued equally the same, till it ceased altogether, which happened about two or three minutes after it was first heard. Whether this noise was occasioned by the vapour, or by the approach of a very heavy shower of uncommonly large hail, seems to be uncertain. The greyish-coloured vapour moved up the river, whirling, or at least rustling, the surface of the water. When it came a little below the place where the ferry boat passes, it appeared, on the south bank, in the form of a cone, and was seen to move round rapidly, for a little; and about the same time, one of the ferry-boats, it is said, was whirled about again and again; and in a little after, it disappeared, and was not seen any more by the people about Ellon. No hurt was done to trees, nor anything else, as has been reported.

Some say, that, while the vapour was moving up the river and its banks, they felt the smell of sulphur; but others, who were equally near, say, that they felt no such smell.

Extract of a letter from John's haven.

On Saturday the 1st inst. one of our boats, going out to the fishing, with seven men on board, overfell in a sudden squall of wind; by which accident one man was drowned, the other six were picked up by boats, and brought on shore, but one of them is since dead.

Extract of a letter from Lanark, May 7: 1784.

The young gentlemen writers from Edinburgh, bred apprentices here, some years ago, instituted themselves, by a silver badge wore by the Prefes for the time, into a club, held weekly at Edinburgh, and annually here, by the name of the CORRA LYN CLUB, (or the Bachelor's Fall of Water, for no married man can be admitted a member,) and gave a most splendid ball this evening, in the County Room, at which were present almost all the respectable young ladies in this place, joined by all the country young ladies and gentlemen, which was conducted with the utmost harmony and decorum, much to the honour of the Lady Directress appointed by a committee of the club, and ended with universal applause.

The late political bustle being now ended, and the minds of the inhabitants got into a proper frame, we hope idleness and dissipation will be totally unknown in this town.

Taken from the romantic beautiful fall of water over the Lin in Clyde, in this neighbourhood, of that name.

Extract of a letter from Cork, May 8.

This day a very alarming number of distressed manufacturers, armed with swords and pistols, assembled at the stores on the South Mall; in which a considerable quantity of woollen and other goods, originally shipped at Rotterdam for a foreign market, but, by a late act of our Parliament, were to be admitted to an entry and sold here by auction this day, were deposited. On a remonstrance of the impropriety of their conduct, they were dispersed without doing any mischief; and we are happy to find the persons concerned in the sales have declared, no woollen goods whatsoever, of this cargo, shall be disposed of in this country.

At a Court of Oyer and Hold held this day, it was the unanimous opinion of the freemen, that the freedom of this city SHOULD NOT be granted to the present Lord Lieutenant or his Secretary.

An Old Jurymen as soon as possible.

FOR THE CALEDONIAN MERCURY.

EPITAPH for the GRAVE of OSSIAN, in GLEN-ALISON.

Roll on, ye dark brown years! Let ages roll;

And, like the waves of ever-moving ocean,

Or leaves of trees, let sons of men arise.

Nor dark brown years, nor ages rolling on,

The voice of Cona's crier shall cease to hear.

Lift up your heads, ye hills of Alpin green!

Lift up your dewy heads the clouds above;

And in the vales let your blue streams rejoice,

Of other times the joy of grief to raise:

"The song and soul of Ossian yet remain!"

O sons of Alpin! of the strong in arms!

Here fall'd the Hero's strength; and here the tomb,

All that could die of Cona's chief, receiv'd.

Here, on his staff the tuneful Hero lean'd,

On his grey hairs the glittering sun-beam shined:

Down to the narrow house, with four grey stones,

Here did he sink, by Mira's stone, to sleep. ALBANICUS.

THE Author of Nature is wonderful even in the least of his works. The amazing Woman in miniature, from Magor, in Monmouthshire, who is beyond contradiction the most astonishing curiosity sportive Nature ever held out to the admiration of mankind, is shortly expected in this city, of which further notice will be given by hand bills, properly distributed.—This wonderful production of nature is now in the 26th year of her age, and not 18 lbs. weight. She is possessed of a great deal of vivacity and spirit; and by the last Doctor HUNTER was shown to their Majesties, at the Queen's Lodge, Windsor, on Saturday the 4th of August 1781. But no more shall be said of this Wonder of Nature. Those who may honour her with their visits will judge for themselves.

SUCH Noblemen, Gentlemen, Counties, or other Societies who have already agreed, or may agree, to contribute to an application to Parliament for relieving the Friths in Scotland from coal duties, and high Custom-house Fees, &c. which are thought to be illegally levied upon them and the other general trade of Scotland, are intreated to remit their contributions to Mr John Buchan clerk to the signet, agent to the association for obtaining relief in this above and other particulars.

The application is at present carrying on at London, attended with considerable expence. And it is intreated, that such counties as may not have had the affair under consideration hitherto, may be pleased to take it up, with their first convenience; and that both Counties and Royal Burghs may recommend the affair to their representatives in Parliament, as it is of so much general importance to Scotland.

The Lands and Mill of GLACK, the Lands of OLD CRAIG and KIRK TOWN, and the Lands of DAVIOT; all lying contiguous in the parishes of Daviot and Chapel of Garrioch, and county of Aberdeen.

These lands consist of 1188 acres or thereby, and the present rent is 322 l. 8 s. 8 d. Sterling in money; 147 bolls meal, 9 bolls beer, and about 20 dozen of poultry, besides carriages and services; and the public burdens are about 23 l. and 10 bolls victual.

Upon the lands of Glack, in the centre of the estate, there is a commodious mansion-house, gardens, and offices, fit for the accommodation of a gentleman's family; and on the farm that surrounds the house, formerly in the heritor's own hand, a very complete set of barns, byres, houses for farm servants, &c. was lately built and slated.

This farm (planting included) contains about 150 acres, divided into regular inclosures properly fenced, well supplied with water, and surrounded with belts of planting and hedges, in the most thriving condition. It has been improved at a considerable expence, and is at present all in grass, and laid down in good condition; the greatest part several years ago.

The adjoining farm of Westmains, about 80 acres, was lately taken in to the proprietor's own hand, and inclosed. It is only charged in the rental at 15 l. paid for the grass 1783; though the former rent paid by the tenant was 10 l. in money, and 24 bolls meal. This estate holds of the Crown, and stands rated in the cess-books at above 700 l. Scots. It is of a good soil, well accommodated, and of easy access. A regular post passes near to the house three times a week. There is a good mill on the estate, which was lately repaired. But no part of the estate is thirled to any mill, except one small seffion. Two yearly fairs, in June and October, are held at the Kirk-town of Daviot, and there is a right to a weekly market.

The title-deeds, rental, current leases, plans of the lands, and conditions of sale, are to be seen in the hands of William Walker attorney in Exchequer; to whom, or to Mr. Farquharson accountant in Edinburgh, who has power to sell by private bargain, persons willing to purchase may apply.
